The Sons of England Benevolent Society was founded in the City of Toronto, County of York, Province of Ontario, and Dominion of Canada, on the 12th day of December, 1874, by George F. Carrette, James Lomas, Samuel Buckner, and others.

Address to Englishmen.

Amongst the numerous Benevolent Societies at present formed in the Dominion there are none exclusively for Englishmen. The Scotchman has his "St. Andrew's Society," the Irishman has his "St. Patrick's Society," Germans and the natives of other countries have theirs, from which they do not only claim benefits, but in which they meet none but their own country-men. The members of these societies, by their advice, and by more substantial means, aid and assist their less successful compatriots.

Is an Englishman's heart less warm or less true to his countrymen than are the hearts of those claiming a different nationality to his own? History proves otherwise. Why, then, should we not unite and form a Society that shall have for its objects the moral, mental and social advancement of Englishmen, for assisting each other in times of sickness, need and death, for rendering pecuniary and beneficial aid to the widows and orphans of deceased members, and for other good, noble and patriotic purposes. There is a noble society formed here and elsewhere that is doing a great work amongst Englishmen, namely, the St. George's Society; but are we, as Englishmen, if visited by sickness or distress of any kind to be compelled to solicit charity? No man of fine feeling and high principle can receive charity without feeling humiliated. Let us, then, as Englishmen, loving our country and countrymen, have a society from which we can, when in sickness or distress, claim aid as our right, and not as a charity—a society from which we can receive assistance without feeling under any obligation to each other. Providence has not given to any man an indemnity from affliction, and it is a duty we owe ourselves and our families to provide against that distress which inevitably attends its visitation.

No class in socieiy are exempt, but the more humble are particularly exposed to misfortune and sickness, as disastrous in their consequences as they are difficult to avert. It is a good and noble principle in men to try, by frugality and prudence, to lay up a store for old age and to meet calamities. Shall we not, then, form a society in which we can meet brother Englishmen, and from which we can demand relief, not as a charity, nor as a gift, but as a right to which we are justly entitled, from having, when in health and prosperity, provided against adversity. There is a charge--and to some extent a truthful one--that Englishmen will not unite for their mutual good. Men claiming a different nationality from ours have been greatly benefitted by uniting. Is it not logically certain that we, if united, shall derive mutual benefits, and increase in strength, prosperity and usefulness? Where is the Englishman, when afar from his native home, whose heart does not warm when he meets one of his countrymen? Let us, then, join together, one and all, and form a Band of Brothers, in reality, and not merely in name, a Society in which we shall meet only our own kindred and lovers of our dear Old Land, the wonder and admiration of the world. "England ! with all thy faults, I love thee still." The founders of this society deemed it prudent to exclude Roman Catholics from membership in it, not because they bear any ill-will towards them, but because this is a secret society, and Roman Catholics are prohibited from joining such. In conclusion, let us assure all worthy Englishmen of a most hearty and cordial welcome into our ranks. Our motto is Fidelity—faithful to ourselves, faithful to each other, and faithful to our country—and, if carried out in its integrity, no society has a more noble one.

chair, only after it shall have been ascertained that the call therefor is sustained by a majority of the members of the Lodge present, and then shall always be put in the words following:—"Shall the question be now put?" which words shall be understood to have reference to whatever question may be pending immediately before such call for the previous question may have been so made.

5. Any two members having voted in the majority may, at the same or next regular meeting, move for a reconsideration thereof, but no discussion on the main question shall be allowed upon such motion.

6. Every member shall have the privilege of speaking twice on any question, but not oftener, unless by permission of the presiding officer.

7. The presiding officer, or any member, may call a Brother to order while speaking, and in such case the debate shall forthwith be suspended, and the brother so called to order shall not proceed until the point of order thus raised shall have been decided, nor speak upon such point of order unless it be to make necessary explanation or appeal from the decision of the Chair.

8. In all cases where a member may appeal from any decision of the chair he shall use the following words and none other, unless it be for necessary explanations:—"Worthy President,—I respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair to the Lodge," and the Lodge shall, after such explanation from the presiding officer as he may deem necessary, proceed forthwith to consider the vote upon the question: "Will the Lodge sustain the decision of the chair"?

9. The presiding officer or the Lodge may at any time require all members present to vote upon any question, or may excuse any member or members from so doing.

10. Brothers not members of the Lodge may address the meeting on receiving permission to that effect from the presiding officer.

11. A motion to suspend the order of proceedings for the time being, may at any time be carried by a majority vote ; but no part of these rules shall be altered or amended, unless by a two-thirds vote, at a special meeting convened for that purpose.

12. In the event of disputes arising whereby none of the foregoing decide the case, recourse shall be made to "Cushing's Manual of Parliamentary Usage."

AMENDMENTS.

185. This Constitution, or any part thereof, shall not be altered, amended, suspended, or annulled, unless by a two-thirds vote of the Grand Lodge in session.
